Faegre Drinker Relocates Dallas Office to the Center of the Dallas Arts District

FAEGRE DRINKER — April 17, 2024 — Effective April 15, 2024, Faegre Drinker has relocated its Dallas office and is now operating from a new space at 2323 Ross Avenue in the city's contemporary Arts District.

The move allows Faegre Drinker to continue the path of upward growth and innovation in the Dallas/Fort Worth area, home to nearly 50 talented colleagues representing many of the firm's practice groups.

An 18-story office building located in the center of the Dallas Arts District, 2323 Ross Ave. will provide an outstanding experience to firm professionals and guests. In providing a highly desirable work environment, tenants are inspired by the world-class architecture and art displayed throughout the building and enjoy immediate access to the neighboring HALL Arts Hotel, an outdoor plaza with onsite dining and access to the Texas Sculpture Walk. The new office features design elements that incorporate excellent natural light, improved collaboration spaces, a state-of-the-art secure conference center and other amenities for colleagues and clients to enjoy.

Faegre Drinker's Dallas office relocation follows the firm's office opening in Ft. Myers, Florida in June 2023. In January 2022, the firm unified its Chicago offices in a new office space in the West Loop. And in 2024, the firm will also be relocating its London office and opening a new Scottsdale location to serve as the firm's Design Lab center.

"We're thrilled to be settled into our new, modernized space and excited to begin welcoming our clients into it," said Dawn McCord, Dallas office leader. "With this relocation, our Dallas office is primed for excellent collaboration and growth in a sought-after location in the city."

Effective immediately, please note the Dallas office address below:
